

BITTER FIGHT IS TO BE EXPECTED

PROMISES TO BE HARDEST FOUGHT CONTEST SINCE
TROUBLE OF SEVENTY SEVEN.

TROUBLE IS ANTICIPATED

Other Railroads Beside the Pennsylvania Are in Trouble.—New York Faces Bread Famine.

Pittsburgh, May 2.—What promises to be one of the bitterest and most protracted struggles of union labor for recognition on the great Pennsylvania railroad system when the strikes and riots of 1877 took definite form today with between 7,000 and 10,000 ship men in the western part of the state in a walk-out.

The union leaders declare the railroad officials have been secretly dropping the union employees from their pay rolls for months. This is denied by the officials.

It was declared today that the Pittsburgh division shops would be tied up today, 12,000 employees joining in the walk-out.

The first contingent of strike breakers arrived at the Pittsburgh shops today. Serious trouble may follow.

In Chicago.

Chicago, May 2.—Although no serious trouble was expected, 100 policemen guarded the property of the St.
Paul and C. and W. A. two of the six railroads involved in the strike in the maintenance of men.

The men demand recognition of the union. A sympathetic strike of 6,000 freight handlers is threatened.

A summary of the strike situation in Chicago today shows that approximately 20,000 men in various trades are out and the number will likely increase to 40,000.

Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor and a prominent labor official arrived in Chicago and will take steps to settle the various strikes.

Bread Famine.

New York, May 2.—A bread famine is threatened. Two thousand union bakers are on a strike. Police reserves were called to the east side to quell the strike riots today in which a number of bakers were injured.

Shooting Deputy Sheriff
Last October.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]
Hayward, Wis., May 2.—John F.
Dietz, his wife, and son, Leslie, were placed on trial today before Judge Holt. They are jointly charged with the murder of Deputy Sheriff Hupp, who was one of the posse which be-dam on the Thornapple river last October.

There is no attorney for the defense and Dietz is conducting his own case. John Dietz was again committed a prisoner to the custody of the sheriff when the special representative of the Illinois Surety company and indemnitors who insured Dietz for forty thousand dollars, announced that the company had surrendered the bond, wishing to protect the indemnity company.

In the examination of jurors, Dietz repeatedly asked them if they might be influenced against him and his family by disposition of the lumber trust.

Much Mooted Case Relative To Civil Service Law Is Decided This Morning.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.]
Madison, Wis., May 2.—In a memorandum opinion by Chief Justice Winslow, the supreme court today upheld the constitutionality of the state civil service law in every particular.

In the memorandum opinion the court says the civil service law "Contains a proper, general scheme, and is an appropriate exercise of the legislative function to regulate the civil service of the state."

The opinion also indicates that later, in a more exhaustive opinion, the court may discover some minor features to be invalid, but that these will not affect the general validity of the law.

ARGUMENTS HEARD IN INJURY CASE

Case of Monahan Against Fairbanks-Morse Co. Will Go to Jury Some Time During Afternoon.

Undoubtedly the case of Monahan against the Fairbanks-Morse company, which has been carried on in the circuit court for several days, will go to the jury at a late hour this afternoon.
At two-thirty the counsel for the plaintiff, M. O. Mount, closed his arguments and J. B. Doe, lawyer for the defense, began his talk to the jury.

Monahan was injured several years ago while in the act of oiling a gear in the above company's shop, becoming caught in the machinery and whirled about, receiving injuries which, it is alleged, will leave him a cripple for life. The plaintiff maintains that it was due to the negligence of the defendant that a certain set screw was left in a condition which would lay anyone employed thereabouts to become tangled therein.

The defense claimed that it was a physical impossibility for a man to have been caught in the gear in the manner described and claimed by the plaintiff. In his plea, Mr. Mount asked for $10,000 as a reasonable compensation for the injury. As soon as the defense has finished its arguments and the judge has given his instructions to the jury, they will retire and return with a verdict some time during the afternoon.

STREET MATTERS CAUSE WRANGLE AMONG CITY DADS

FIRST SESSION OF NEW COUNCIL
MARKED BY HEATED ARGUMENTS.

U. S. W. V. GET PERMISSION

To Use Streets for Celebration Here
July 3, 4 and 5—Numerous Other Matters of Business Discussed.

Barren, discussion might be a possible phrase to properly fit some of the remarks passed by the new common council at their first regular meeting at the city hall last evening. There was a display of difference not only by members of different political affiliations, but by members representing the same ward, and when a combination of all of these circumstances was reached the fun became lively.

A large amount of business, however, was disposed of, principally pertaining to highway matters, despite the amount of hawking which was carried on. At times the arguments provided amusement for the crowd of citizens and citizens-to-be who occupied the chairs in the council chamber.

The wordy battle was hottest, perhaps, when Alderman Dullin, after reading a communication from the chief of the fire department asking the purchase of supplies, said that during the past year the chairman of the public buildings committee had acted as chairman of the purchasing committee, but he, as the new chairman of the building committee, did not want to do this without the authorization of the council, and asked the council to act on it.

Action was immediately started by Alderman Buchholz, who arose and suggested an amendment to the rules of the council, so that the purchasing committee be composed of the mayor, the chairman of the Highway, Police, Public Building and Fire and Water committees, the committee which made the larger number of requests for purchases. He claimed that under the old rules a hardship was worked and committees which were not represented in the purchasing committee were often antagonized. Alderman Dullin replied that he did not agree with Alderman Buchholz and he did not see why the chairman from the second ward should try to butt in on the committee.

In the course of discussion it was stated by City Attorney Maxwell and Alderman Evans, the latter former chairman of the purchasing committee, that a resolution had been passed two years previous, placing the chairman of the building committee in charge of the purchasing committee. Mayor Nichols therefore ruled Buchholz's amendment out of order and Alderman Buchholz withdrew it, but served notice that at some time in the future he would present another resolution to change the representation of the committee. The matter was finally settled when an order of Alderman Dullin's that the supplies for the fire department be purchased was passed.

New Ordinances were introduced at the session last evening by Alderman Dullin and were given their first and second readings. The first, dealing with the liquor question in Janesville, is to prohibit brewers from engaging in the liquor business. The ordinance provides that no brewer or any person acting as an agent for a brewery may operate a saloon, and that a license shall not be issued to any person desiring to open a saloon in any building owned by a brewery, or for which rent is paid by them, and the oath of the person to whom a license is issued must be received that he will comply with the requirements of the ordinance.

Some action with regard to the question of an "open town" was expected last evening by a number of who are interested to see what will be done by the council in this respect, but the subject was not mentioned.

The other ordinance dealt with palmists, clairvoyants, and others of that class who engage in their occupation in this city. It provides that all fortune tellers, mesmerists, palmists, or clairvoyance acts shall be compelled to pay a license of ten dollars per day for every day they are engaged in such occupation, an exception being made in favor of persons giving entertainments at the theatres.

James Appointed.
The resignation of Dr. J. W. St. John from the board of fire and police commissioners was read at the opening of last night's meeting and just before adjournment was taken Mayor Nichols announced a successor would be appointed at the next meeting. To fill the vacancy caused by the expiration of W. J. Skelly's term on May 1, he appointed Arthur G. Jones as Mr. Skelly's successor and the appointment was confirmed by the council.

Connell vs. Buchholz.
The rub between the two aldermen from the Second Ward came when Alderman Connell introduced an order to repair Glen street between Milton Avenue and Prairie Avenue, and put gravel on the same. The Mayor suggested that the property owners who were in favor of macadamizing the entire street, it might be expedient to wait until action was taken toward macadamizing the street. Alderman Connell stated that the street was in bad condition and needed immediate attention and Alderman Buchholz suggested the use of chert instead of gravel as was done on Rice street in the First Ward. Connell finally changed his order to read that repairs should be made under the supervision of the aldermen of the ward and in this form it was passed.

Alderman Buchholz then took the floor with an order for cement curb and gutter on Carroll street, between Prospect Avenue and Glen street, and the light between the two was on Connell arising with motion to lay the matter over for two weeks as the matter was now to him and he desired to look into it. Buchholz returned fire with the statement that he had spoken to Connell concerning the matter during the recess and the reason that Connell wished to delay the passage of the order was because of an antiselection agreement with the people. He urged immediate action in order to finish the work before winter as such matters are generally delayed throughout the summer. Connell's motion was killed by a vote of 6 to 4.

The order was passed after the first vote had resulted in a tie. A similar order for curb and gutter on Cornelia street was introduced by Buchholz and again Connell made the request that the matter be laid over two weeks. His motion met the same fate and the opposing forces in the council again showed themselves. Dullin, Donahue and Schmudley voting with Connell and Sheridan, Spohn, Evans, Hall and Shurtlett with Buchholz. Buchholz's second order was also passed. Buchholz offered to have the gutters in the Second Ward cleaned by the street commissioner went through without any opposition.

A. U. S. W. V. request granted.
A resolution passed by the local camp of the United Spanish War Veterans to use the streets of the city in the way other organizations have been permitted to do for their celebration and to hold their annual state encampment to be held here July 3, 4 and 5, was presented by Alderman Buchholz and an order granting this permission under the direction of the chief of police introduced by the alderman at the same time. Alderman Dullin immediately offered an amendment to make the order read the encampment should be under the direction of the chief of police and the highway committee. Buchholz objected to this on the ground that it would work the work of the arrangement committee of the U. S. W. V. in that they would have to obtain authority from six or seven men where otherwise it might be granted by one, and in case the order overstepped its privileges the highway committee has the right to interfere without authority from the council. Dullin admitted this, but insisted on the amendment being included and after some discussion Buchholz agreed to include the amendment in his order and it was passed.

Highway Matters.
Highway matters formed a large portion of the business transacted by the city fathers last evening, and aside from those already mentioned, over which there was an argument, most of the orders went through without discussion. Alderman Spohn introduced several orders for curb and gutter, one for a concrete gutter, and crosswalks, to be built in the Fourth Ward and the building of standard sidewalks in front of property on School and Locust streets. Alderman Evans and Schmudley likewise had orders for crosswalks in the First Ward. Connell curbs and gutters were ordered in the Fifth Ward on Wall street from Madison street to Terrace and the City Engineer directed to establish the curb line for that portion of the street ten feet from the property line. In the First Ward, on the motion of Alderman Evans, curb and gutters were ordered on West Third street from Terrace to Chatham street and from Locust to Chatham street and from Locust to Chatham street and from Locust to Chatham street.

The motion of Alderman Connell to have the apron on the northwest side of Milton Avenue and East street repaired with cement, met with the approval of the city fathers.

Another Scrap.
A fight was precipitated when Alderman Buchholz, just before the close of the session arose and suggested that the Street Commissioner prepare a list of all sidewalks ordered last year, which were not put in and report on them at the next meeting. The street commissioner, who was present at the meeting agreed to do this, and Buchholz made a motion to the effect that the street commissioner be authorized to do or cause to be done all work to be mentioned in his report. Alderman Dullin arose and demanded to know what that called for and what power Buchholz was trying to take away from the council and the aldermen. He questioned as to whether the council needed to authorize such work, but the City Attorney held that under the provisions of the city charter this was necessary. Dullin maintained however that it was giving street commissioner power to do as he pleased without allowing the aldermen to act on the report and said that he no order like the one of Buchholz's ever went through the council before.

Alderman Sheridan took the floor in support of Buchholz's resolution and said that he was willing to leave it to the street commissioner to do the work, that he (Sheridan) did not have time to look these matters up and if Alderman Dullin wanted to go ahead and look for holes in the street in the Fifth Ward and in the Fourth Ward too, he would be perfectly willing to have Dullin do it. Buchholz's order went through by a seven to three vote.

Center Avenue Repairs.
Dullin then came to the forefront and with the statement "More holes to be filled" introduced an order to repair Center Avenue from the Five Points to the Monterey bridge. This again brought a protest from Alderman Sheridan who stated that he did not propose to be included in a law suit similar to that in which the city was engaged a short time ago over repairs made to the streets. Dullin stated that the work was merely to be repair work to which Sheridan replied that the "repair" work the other time came near being macadamizing the street and had resulted in a lawsuit. Sheridan's motion to lay the matter over two weeks until the amount of repairs necessary to the street had been determined was passed by the vote of six to four, the aldermen taking sides as in previous altercations at the meeting.

The Recorder Printing Company was awarded the contract for the city printing for the year, the only bid for the work being received from that company. It being the year for them to receive the work.

Chief of the Fire Department H. C. Klein was given authority to remove the hose tower from the East Side fire station and re-roof that section of the building, the tower having become unsafe and in danger of falling under a strong wind.

The report of Chief of Police Appleby for the month of April was accepted and placed on file. Sixty-six arrests were made by the police during the month, of which number forty-two were discharged and twenty-four taken into court. The charges on which arrests were made were: Inebriation, 1; vagrancy, 1; violating speed ordinance, 2; disorderly, 1; begging, 2; drunkenness, 59. Officers credited with arrests were: Appleby, 9; John Brown, 5; Fanning, 11; Morrissey, 11; Champion, 7; Sam Brown, 6; Dorn, 17.

A communication from street commissioner Dan Williams, asking authority to fill in and repair streets where needed and to hire teams to do the work where necessary, was presented by Alderman Sheridan with a motion that the street commissioner be given this authority. The City Attorney gave his opinion that the street commissioner could do this without authority from the council and the communication was accepted and placed on file.

Bills for the month of April were allowed and the payment of $100 to the city attorney to pay witness fees in the municipal court for the month of April was passed and the report of the city attorney for the year 1910 were accepted and placed on file. The report of the city treasurer and city attorney on the sale of the Racine street bridge bonds for which the sum of $17,881.06 was turned into the Racine street bridge fund, was adopted.

Bonds and oaths of the city assessors, street commissioner, city engineer, city health officer and of Walter L. Taylor as fire and police commissioner were accepted and placed on file. Similar action was taken with regard to the plumber's bond of C. J. Gahrman and Co., with check of $25 accompanying the bond, for the privilege of excavating in the streets of the city.

On a change of venue from Judge Lange's court, the civil action of Margaret Reed against Mary Reed was this afternoon tried in Judge Stanley Tallman's court at half past one o'clock before a jury of six. His Hard Lot.
"My lot is a hard one!" he muttered, and his face wore a look of despair; too true were the words that he uttered, as he paused with his spade in the dirt. He'd thought to make garden that day and his spade with pleasure had tumbled; but he struck solid rock, and "I say, my lot is a hard one," he muttered.

SHERIFF REFUSES TO PAY REWARDS

OFFERED FOR CAPTURE OF A MICHIGAN ALLEGED FORGER.

ACTION WAS COMMENCED

This Afternoon by Chief of Police Appleby to Compel Him to "Make Good."

Action was this afternoon started by Chief of Police George M. Appleby against Alphonse Tyler of Coldwater, Mich., sheriff of Branch county, in a suit for $300, which the chief of police claims is due him as the reward for the capture of Orin P. Thornton, alleged forger, who was captured here yesterday principally through the efforts of the chief.

Tyler arrived here from Michigan this noon and demanded the prisoner, but when asked for the reward he refused to pay it, evidently intending to keep it for himself. Chief of Police Appleby refused to turn over Thornton to the Coldwater officer and advised by his attorney, immediately took steps to start the legal action against Tyler.

The chief bases his claim for the reward on a part of the notice sent out from the Michigan sheriff's office, which reads as follows:

"I will pay $300 reward for his arrest anywhere in the United States or Canada."

"Wire at my expense."

"ALPHONSE TYLER,
Sheriff of Branch County,
Coldwater, Mich."

Thornton was arrested here yesterday afternoon by Officer John Brown, who acted under instructions from Chief of Police Appleby. He was formerly drawn commissioner of Branch county.

A reward of three hundred dollars was offered for the arrest of Thornton, who is alleged to have forged the name of "John Cox" on a draft order for a large sum. The man was arrested some time ago and released on $1,000 bail, furnished by his father. Thornton jumped his bail and with his family went to western Canada where he took up a claim intending to homestead it. Homesickness, however, caused him to return to the United States and he went to Milwaukee, where he entered a barber school and learned the trade. Recently he purchased a shop at Port Atkinson and intended to go into business there.

Thornton's whereabouts were traced through his household goods, which were shipped here from Leonidas, Mich., to Mrs. Frank Ward, a delinquent name used to cover up Thornton's whereabouts. The sheriff of Branch county learned of this and came here a week ago Saturday to get his man, but not finding him left the matter in charge of Chief Appleby, who learned that Thornton would call for his goods yesterday, and accordingly instructed Officer Brown to make the arrest.

Thornton has a wife and three small children, who were living at Port Atkinson. He telephoned to them immediately after his arrest and they came here, stopping at the home of Chief of Police Appleby. The arrest was a terrible blow to her and the results of it will fall heavily on her and the children. Thornton, talking in the jail last night, said that while he will have to "face the music," there will be others who will "dance" to the same tune.

METHODS AND MEANS OF GAINING HEALTH

Bernarr Macfadden, Noted Exponent of Physical Culture, Lectured at Y. M. C. A. Last Evening.

If you are not healthy, strong and robust, it is not one's fault but your own, according to Bernarr Macfadden, famed exponent of physical culture and editor of the Physical Culture magazine, in his lecture at the Y. M. C. A. auditorium last evening.

The speaker emphasized as a fundamental truth the fact that a man cannot succeed in any line of work if he has not a healthy body which can stand both physical and mental strain. Health is a necessary asset to a business career and there is absolutely no excuse for being without it, according to Macfadden.

He outlined rather exhaustively the means of attaining a vigorous constitution and robust physique. Exercise is the all important factor in the building of a strong body and there is no person who is too busy to get all that is necessary. Garden work, house work, walking and plenty of fresh air were recommended as excellent medicine for physical ailments.

Correct breathing was given as one of the most important accessories to health. Then a strong spine may be considered as next in importance, and the lecturer explained various exercises which serve to make a strong support for the body.

He deplored the tendency of Americans to eat too much. They are becoming a race of gluttons and if they continue they will be a generation of weaklings in less than a generation. Two meals a day are sufficient and less meat and more vegetables should be eaten. A moment diet was advocated as the best in the majority. "Gobbling" of food without sufficient mastication is one of the worst enemies to health.

There were no very new or startling facts brought to light in the lecture but it served to point out and emphasized some of the more important facts to be recognized in the care of the body.

THE HEAVENS IN MAY.

By Prof. Eric DuRoi of the University of Pennsylvania.

Two faint comets are again due. Venus and Jupiter now in the evening sky. Vega well up in the northeast.

The two brightest planets of all are now shining out in the evening sky. For a long time we have seen the beautiful Saturn slowly leaving us, until by the close of last month it had drawn so near the sun that it could be observed no longer. Meanwhile, those who take an interest in studying the face of the heavens have been watching the slow it will continue to increase in brightness, and by August 1911 will be nearly three times as bright as at present. It may then be seen in full daylight.

THE MAY STARS.

Although there are no stars now in the sky which compare with our two evening planets in brightness, yet there are many of these most interesting stars nothing but a uniform blaze of light. But on the remarkable photographs recently taken with the special mirror of the Mount Wilson observatory, these have been counted, not only, but also stars.

Readers who have access to a telescope or a large pair of binoculars will find other most interesting clusters at each of the points marked X in Plate 1. The one of these lying in the group between the two bright stars is almost sixty of its stars are continually varying in brightness, while the stars in the cluster above Arcturus, no less than one-tenth of the whole number are variable. Among the scattered stars of the sky there is hardly one in one hundred, at most, which varies in brightness. What it is that is indicated by this remarkable variability of clustered stars we do not know.

VARIABLE STARS.

Readers who wish to observe the darkening of a cluster of the interesting two-point star, Algol, will have but one opportunity during this month. The dark companion, which passes between us and the star every 2 days 21 hours, will cut off one-sixth of the light on May 12 at 7 P. M. If the star is observed at this time it will be found very faint, but as it requires three hours to regain its full brightness, it will have before the eclipse is entirely over. The star will be found at P. Figure 1.

Another most interesting variable star of this same kind is the star at P. Figure 2.

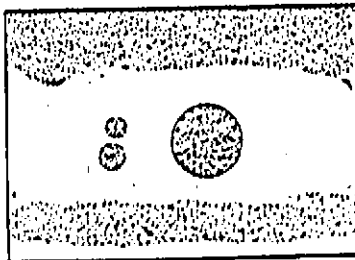

Figure 1.—The first moon of Jupiter as seen in a small (inverting) telescope at 11 hours, 30 minutes P. M., May 1, 1911. (B) The same, 24 hours later.

ure 1, a very short distance to the right of the green star at P. This is usually visible to the naked eye, and is just visible to the naked eye, and every 2 days 21 hours a dark companion passes in front of it, so that it is cut off half of its light. It will be faintest on May 6 at 7 P. M., May 9 at 3 A. M., and May 23 at 2 A. M. This star is best observed with a small telescope or field glass.

erved with a small telescope or field glass.

It may be of interest to state that the wonderful variable star, which became so very bright last August, is now almost as faint as it ever was. It is of the 8.4 magnitude, and is still growing fainter. Soon, however, it will again begin to brighten, and toward the end of June will be visible to the naked eye.

THE PLANETS.

Venus will move from Taurus almost entirely across Gemini during this month. It is a most brilliant and beautiful object in the telescope, appearing in shape like the moon, when a little more than half full. On May 2 at 10

P. M. it passes the planet Neptune in its eastward course, and at this time the faintest, greenish world may be found by first pointing the telescope on the brighter planet, and then declining it exactly three degrees farther south. The narrow crescent moon passes south of Venus on May 20; the two objects will form at this time a striking figure in the western sky.

But the object of most absorbing interest is undoubtedly the great planet Jupiter, which, with its beautifully colored bands and four bright moons, forms an wonderfully interesting object of study, even in a small telescope. The observer sees the round ball of the planet turning so rapidly about its axis that markings are continually disappearing around one edge, and new ones are continually carried into view around the other. For although this great world is 80,000 miles in diameter, it turns completely around in less than ten hours.

And from only a few minutes' watching one can see that the bright moons are also moving rapidly about the planet. To watch these as they pass behind the bright ball, or into its shadow, or as they transit across the planet's face is a never-ending source of interest. While a moon is in transit we see its round disc moving across one marking of the planet after another, sometimes outside the dark and sometimes inside the changing background behind it. And following it in its journey we see the little round shadow which it casts on the ball, and which is always intensely black. Sometimes a moon has been seen to cast a double shadow, the two falling on different layers of the great, but gaseous atmosphere that surrounds the planet.

On May 7 the inner moon will begin to pass in front of Jupiter at 8 hours 24 minutes P. M. (Eastern Standard Time); its shadow will first fall on the disc at 8 hours 23 minutes; the moon will pass of the ball at 10 hours 25 minutes, and the shadow at 10 hours 42 minutes. Exactly the same phenomenon may be seen on May 2, but each will occur 5 hours 34 minutes later than on the evening of May 7.

On May 6 at about 8 hours 30 minutes, the observer will see but three moons near the planet. At 8 hours 40 minutes the last moon will suddenly disappear from an eclipse. At 8 hours 25 minutes the second moon will begin to transit, its shadow following 15 minutes later, at 11 hours 12 minutes the first moon will disappear behind the planet so that at this time only two moons will be easily visible. At 12 midnight the second moon will leave of the disc, and at 1 hour 30 minutes A. M. the first moon will reappear, and all four moons can again be seen. On May 12, 20, 28 and 31 a similar large number of interesting events

A faint comet which was discovered by Wolf in 1894, and which was found to be moving in a small closed path about the sun most every year, is again drawing near the earth, during the summer it will move along the path KL, Figure 1, and will be seen for with large telescopes.

Another comet is due to return after an absence of 60 years, but as this will move only in the southern heavens, across the constellations of the Indian and the Peacock, it will be invisible to northern observers.

appearance of the brilliant Venus, as it really climbed higher and higher up from the horizon. Two of the stars in the west, and they have seen, too, how the most interesting planet, Jupiter, has been slowly entering the evening sky in the east, but for many weeks there has not been a single planet shining conspicuously among the stars of the evening sky.

This month for the first time we can say that these two most interesting planets have fairly entered the evening sky.

No one can have failed to notice how our sister Venus has become our most brilliant evening star. Almost as soon as the sun has set, and while the whole western sky is still flooded with light, we can detect it shining brightly in the east, and when the twilight glow disappears and the stars begin to come out we can easily see that it is now by far the brightest object in the whole heavens. It will remain with us all through the summer. Every evening it may be seen to have drawn still further away from the sun, until on July 7 it will have attained its greatest distance, for more than a month after this date

NEW YORK OFFICIAL IS INDICTED FOR BRIBERY

Charles H. Hyde, City Chamberlain, Is Accused by Grand Jury—Is Not Arrested.

New York, May 2.—An indictment charging violation of the criminal statute covering bribery by public officials was returned by what is known as the Carnegie grand jury against Charles H. Hyde, city chamberlain. Mr. Hyde was not taken into custody, as his lawyer, Samuel Untermyer, assured Supreme Court Justice Davis that his client would appear whenever his presence was desired.

The indictment is based on evidence that Chamberlain Hyde forced the Northern bank to lend $130,000 to the Carnegie Trust company and was a gainer by the transaction.

The specific charge of bribery is based upon a transaction by which, it is alleged, Hyde received checks for amounts aggregating $13,500 from the officials of the Carnegie Trust company, and it is alleged that this amount was the consideration for Hyde's action in placing various deposits of city money.

It was not expected that the grand jury would act so speedily, but it developed that the indictment comes now in order to forestall powerful influences that were being brought to bear against the district attorney.

Neither Mr. Hyde, Mr. Untermyer nor District Attorney Whitman will discuss the case, all saying it would be improper to say anything at this time.

Gives Up Son, Alleged Embezzler, to New York Police.

New York, May 2.—Given up to the authorities by his mother, who loves him better than life, but who thinks affection should be subordinated to duty, John Luby, seventeen years old, assistant receiving teller in the Twelfth Ward bank, One Hundred and Sixth street and Third avenue, was brought to this city from Frankfort, N. Y., shackled to a detective. He is charged with stealing $700.

The mother said: "Last Saturday I received a letter from John. It was a pitiful letter and was sent from Frankfort, N. Y. John told me how homesick he was, how he was without friends, money or work.

"It was my duty to tell the bank. It was giving up my own son to the police. It nearly killed me, but I did my duty."

KEITH OF THE BORDER

A TALE OF THE PLAINS

By RANDALL DARRISH

Author of 'MY LADY OF THE SOUTH'

Illustrations by DEARBORN HELLWELL

(Copyright, A. C. McClurg & Co., 1910)

"A little of everything, I reckon," a touch of returning bitterness in the tone. "A platinian, who has punched cattle, but my last job was government scout."

"You look as though you might be more than that," she said slowly. The man, flushed, his lips pressing tightly together.

"Well, I—may have been," he confessed unwillingly. "I started out all right, but somehow I reckon I just went adrift. It's a habit in this country."

Apparently those first words of comment had left her lips unthinkingly, for she made no attempt to reply; merely stood there directly facing him, her clear eyes gazing frankly into his own. He seemed to actually see her now for the first time, fairly—a supple, slender figure, simply dressed, with wonderfully expressive brown eyes, a perfect wealth of dark hair, a clear complexion with slight olive tinge to it, a strong, intelligent face, not strictly beautiful, yet strangely attractive, the forehead low and broad, the nose straight, the lips full and inclined to smile. Suddenly a vague remembrance brought recognition.

"Why, I know you now."

"Indeed!" the single word a note of undiluted surprise.

"Yes; I thought you looked oddly familiar all the time, but couldn't for the life of me connect up. You're Christie Macleira."

"Am I?" her eyes filled with curiosity.

"Of course you are. You needn't be afraid of me if you want it kept secret, but I know you just the same. Saw you at the 'Gaiety' in Independence, maybe two months ago. I went three times, mostly on your account. You've got a great act, and you can sing too."

She stood in silence, still looking fixedly at him, her bosom rising and falling, her lips parted as if to speak. Apparently she did not know what to do, how to act, and was thinking swiftly.

"Mr. Keith," she said, at last in decision, "I am going to ask you to blot that all out—to forget that you even suspect me of being Christie Macleira, of the 'Gaiety.'"

"Why, certainly; but would you explain?"

"There is little enough to explain. It is sufficient that I am here alone with you. Whether I wish to or not, I am compelled to trust myself to your protection. You may call me Christie Macleira, or anything else you please; you may even think me unworthy respect, but you possess the face of a gentleman, and as such I am going to trust you—I must trust you. Will you accept my confidence on these terms?"

Keith did not smile, nor move. Weak from hunger and fatigue, he leaned wearily against the wall. Nevertheless that simple, womanly appeal awoke all that was strong and sacrificing within him, although her words were so unexpected that, for the moment, he failed to realize their full purport. Finally he straightened up.

"I—accept any terms you desire," he gasped weakly. "If—if you will only give one return."

"One return?—what?"

"Food; we have eaten nothing for sixty hours."

Her face, which had been so white, flushed to the hair, her dark eyes sparkling.

"Why, of course; sit down. I ought to have known from your face. There is plenty here—such as it is—only you must wait a moment."

"I—Accept Any Terms You Desire."

He distinguished her words clearly enough, although she spoke low, as if she preferred what was said between them should not reach the ears of the negro, yet somehow, for the moment, they made no adequate impression on him. Like a famished wolf he began on the coarse fare, and for ten minutes hardly lifted his head. Then his eyes glanced to meet hers across the narrow table, and instantly the gentleman awoke to life.

"I have been a perfect brute," he acknowledged frankly, "with no thought except for myself. Hunger was my master, and I ask your forgiveness, Miss Macleira."

Her eyes smiled.

"I am so very glad to have any one here—any one—in whom I feel even a little confidence—that nothing else greatly matters. Can you both eat, and listen?"

Keith nodded, his eyes full of interest, searching her face.

"Whenever I may be, Mr. Keith, and really that seems only of small importance, I came to Fort Larned seeking some trace of my only brother, whom we last heard from there, where he had fallen into evil companionship. On the stage trip I was fortunate enough to form an acquaintance with a man who told me he knew where I could meet Fred, but that the boy was hiding because of some trouble he had lately gotten into, and that I should have to proceed very carefully so as not to lead the officers to discover his whereabouts. This gentleman was engaged in some business at Carson City, but he employed a man to bring me to this place, and promised to get Fred, and meet me here the following day. There must have been some failure in the plans, for I have been here entirely alone now for three days. It has been very lonesome, and—"

She began a little frightened.

CHAPTER IX.

The Girl of the Cabin.

He saw Ned drop down before the blazing fireplace, and curl up like a tired dog, and observed her take the lamp, open the door into the other room, a trifle, and slip silently out of sight. He remembered staring vaguely about the little room, still dimly

Perhaps I ought not to have come, and I am not certain what kind of a place this is. I was so afraid when you came, but I am not afraid now."

"You have no need to be," he said soberly, impressed by the innocent candor of the girl, and feeling thankful that he was present to aid her. "I could not wrong one of the South."

"My father always told me I could trust a Southern gentleman under any circumstances. Mr. Hawley was from my own State, and knew many of our old friends. That was why I felt such unusual confidence in him, although he was but a travelling acquaintance."

"Mr. Hawley?"

"The gentleman whom I met on the stage."

"Oh, yes; you said he was in business in Carson City, but I don't seem to remember any one of that name."

"He was not there permanently; only to complete some business deal."

"And your brother? I may possibly have known him."

She hesitated an instant, her eyes dropping, until completely shaded by the long lashes.

"He—was rather a wild boy, and ran away from home to enlist in the army. But he got into a bad set, and—"

"And deserted? That was part of the trouble which caused him to hide. He enlisted under the name of Fred Wiloughby. Mr. Hawley told me this much, but I am afraid he did not tell me all."

"And he said you would meet him here?"

Keith gazed about the bare surroundings wonderingly. What was this place, hidden away in the midst of the desert, isolated in a spot where not even Indians roamed. Could it be a secret rendezvous of crime, the headquarters of desperadoes, of cattle rustlers, of the highwaymen of the Santa Fe Trail—a point to which they could ride when hard pressed, certain of hiding here in safety? He began to suspect this, but, if so, who then was this Hawley, and with what object had he sent this girl here? Every way he turned was to confront mystery, to face a new puzzle. What ever she might be—even the music hall singer he believed—she had been involved here innocently enough. Even now she possessed only the most vague suspicion that she had been deceived. The center of the whole plot, if there was a plot, must be Hawley.

"Yes," she replied, "he said that this was one of the stations of a big ranch on which Fred was employed, and that he would certainly be here within a day or two."

"You met Hawley on the stage coach? How did you become acquainted?"

"We were alone for nearly fifty miles," her voice faltering slightly, "and—he called me what you did."

"Christie Macleira?"

"Yes; he—he seemed to think he knew me, and I needed help so much that I let him believe so. I thought it could do no harm, and then, when I found he actually knew Fred, I didn't think of anything else, only how fortunate I was to thus meet him. Surely something serious must have happened, or he would have been here before this. Do you—do you suppose there is anything wrong?"

Keith did not smile nor change features. The more he delved into the matter, the more serious he felt the situation to be. He knew all those ranches lying south on the Canadian, and was aware that this was no outstation. No cattle ever came across that sandy desert unless driven by rustlers, and no honest purpose could account for this isolated hut. There had been frequent robberies along the trail, and he had overheard tales of mysterious disappearances in both Larned and Carson City. Could it be that he had now, accidentally, stumbled upon the rendezvous of the gang? He was not a man easily startled, but this thought sent his heart beating.

He knew enough to realize what such a gang would naturally consist of—deserters, outlaws, rustlers; both Indians and whites, no doubt, combined under some desperate leadership. Gazing into the girl's questioning eyes he could scarcely refrain from blurting out all he suspected. Yet why should he? What good could it do? He could not hope to bear her south to the "Bar X" Ranch, for the ponies were already too thoroughly exhausted for such a journey; he dared not turn north with her, for that would mean his own arrest, leaving her in worse condition than ever. If he only knew who this man Hawley was, his purpose, and plans! Yet what protection could he and Ned prove, alone here, and without arms? All this flashed through his mind in an instant, leaving him confused and uncertain.

ENGLISH LORD TO MARRY AMERICAN MILLIONAIRESS IT IS RUMORED.

Lord "Bobby" Hawley, who came to this country for the Lord Deedes-Vivian Gould wedding, and whose engagement to Mrs. Burke-Roe has been rumored. She is the daughter of the late millionaire sportsman, Frank Work, and was divorced only a few months ago from the Hungarian riding master, Batouyl. Lord Hawley has just sailed, but is expected to return shortly.

A Sacred Confidence.

Down at Southtown, Long Island, there's a hotel that welcomes the trout fishermen. It sends out a neatly typewritten announcement that the season begins on March 31, adds the necessary details as to murmur and the state of the moon, and winds up with this remark: "Orders for worms from those who fish only with the fly will be held in sacred confidence."

Want Pink Cheeks—Red Lips?

Some unfortunate men or women are prone to wonder why some of their friends are blessed with an abundance of color—pink cheeks and red lips—while theirs are always colorless. The reason for this most common condition is—there is not enough red blood corpuscles in the blood—under a microscope the blood is thin and watery. The blood is (lacking) too. Well known physicians assert that the regular administration for several months of three grains hypodermic tablets will greatly improve the color, add to the weight, make the cheeks pink and the lips red and in general be very beneficial. For self administration obtain from any of the best apothecary shops.
